

New Electric Plant Placed In Operation

STREET LAMPS AND FEW HOMES ALREADY CONNECTED.

Grayling's new electric light and power plant went into operation Monday on a partial scale. Street lights were the first to be connected and this is being followed rapidly by connections with private residences, business and industrial places. It will take another week before all those who have subscribed will be served.

The new plant will start out with 560 customers, many more than had been anticipated.

The new plant will be operated with three Diesel engines, two rating 375 horsepower each and one of 225 horsepower. The boulevard lights in the business district are increased nearly six times greater than they had been before. Also the street lights are greatly increased in voltage. Those who witnessed our street lighting on Monday night were amazed by the wonderful improvement.

This new plant will be officially dedicated some time in April. At that time the Avalanche will publish a dedicatory edition giving in detail the many features of the plant and the history of the manner in which it has been made possible. There will be pictures of the plant, both outside and inside and of its principal features.

Watch for announcement of the dates of the dedication of the plant and dedicatory edition of the Avalanche.

Mrs. Peter Larson Died Suddenly

Mrs. Peter Larson, a well known resident of Grayling for about 30 years, died suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage Sunday evening at 6:15 o'clock at her home. She had been ill with a severe cold that had kept her in bed for a couple of days, and she was suddenly stricken with the hemorrhage and passed away immediately. Since a heart attack a couple of months ago, she had been ailing somewhat, however her passing came as a shock to her family and friends, who had not thought her illness serious.

Mrs. Larson had always led a very active life; she was very ambitious and one found her home bustling herself from early morning until night. She was a kind mother and very loyal to her neighbors and friends.

Anna Nicolina Michelson was born Nov. 7, 1881 in Racine, Wis., the daughter of Peter and Bertha Michelson. On March 17, 1902 she was united in marriage to Leonard A. Chamberlain and to the union three children were born. The family resided in Racine, Wis., Davenport, Iowa, and Detroit, coming to Grayling from the latter city in 1910. Mr. Chamberlain died in 1913. Some time later she was united in marriage to Peter Larson, who survives her, besides her daughters, Mrs. Ruth B. Schram of Dearborn and Mrs. Gladys V. Aldrich of Roscommon. A son Ralph Chamberlain, met a tragic death in Detroit several years ago when he was killed by a truck.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at the home and at Grayling Lutheran church later, Rev. P. C. Stockholm officiating.

Interment was in Elmwood cemetery. The services were in the Danish language at the home and in English at the church, where Miss Ingeborg Hanson, Mrs. John Wahlstrom and Mrs. Samuel Rasmussen beautifully sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "Jesus Lover of My Soul." Miss Hanson was the accompanist. The pallbearers were Carl Doroh, George Seeley, Ronnow Hanson, George Hilton, James Lynch and Donald Snell.

Surviving the deceased besides those above mentioned are two sisters and one brother, Mrs. M. Baumgard and Mrs. Cora Tunison, Detroit, and M. Michelson of Racine, Wis., and six grandchildren.

Those from out of town in attendance at the funeral included Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schram and daughters Sally and Donna, Mrs. Cora Tunison, Mrs. M. Baumgard, Clarence Larson and son Jack of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Aldrich of Roscommon, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Schroeder of Detroit; Mrs. Julius Jensen of Milford; Mrs. Walter Carlson, Roscommon; Mr. and Mrs. Ben

Hanson Cafe Team City B. B. Champions

Last Monday and Tuesday nights, the Hanson Cafe team proved beyond a doubt that they were the better team in Grayling. Winning two straight games in a row from the Moose, the first by a score of 41 to 31 and the second by a score of 51 to 47, the Cafe easily annexed the championship.

The first game was fairly even up until the third quarter. Then the Cafe team, by the brilliant shooting of May, Marshall and Sorenson, pulled way ahead of the Moose. The final score was 41 to 31 when the gun ended the game. High point man for the Hanson Cafe was Marshall, with 14 tallies. Smock was high for the losers.

The second game started off with a bang. Hanson Cafe ran up a score of 15 to 2 in the first quarter. However, in the second quarter, the Moose began to pull up a little and the half ended with a score of 15-25. The first half was marked by the fast passing and accurate shooting of the Cafe boys.

The second half started off and the Cafe team began to "pour it on," but the Moose, having a good team, fought gamely. They had little success, however, for the third quarter ended with the Hanson Cafe team in front by 10 points.

The last quarter, for the first few minutes, was touch and go, with both teams making baskets. Then all of a sudden the Moose began to click. With fast passing and breaking down the floor they began to draw nearer and nearer to the Cafe team. Smock, the sparkplug of the Moose, tossed several one-handers through the mesh. With only two minutes to go, the score was 43 to 45, Hanson Cafe. Cafe soon accounted for a couple more buckets by going back to their passing and fast break. When the smoke cleared away, the score of 51 to 47 showed a victory for Hanson Cafe.

The officials were Cornell and Sorenson, the first game; and Coutts and Kraus, the second. Scorekeeper, Jack Cook; and timer "Short" Anthony.

Indian Princess To Visit Rural Schools

Princess Watassa, health teacher from the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, will visit Crawford county school children during the week of March 25, according to Mrs. John W. Payne, commissioner of schools. A native of the Michigan Chippewa tribe, the princess will appear in Indian dress before her young audiences.

Teaching health lessons through her romantic Indian tales, the Princess wins school audiences over to forming good health practices. After every performance letters from children pour into the association office for the princess, telling her how they have improved their health habits since hearing her.

Introducing a new child health program through the state, the princess told her stories to a total of 68,047 students and adults, before 634 schools, during the first six months of the present academic school year. Her program is a part of the health education done by the association and supported by the annual sale of Christmas seals.

The Princess' schedule in Crawford county has been arranged by Mrs. Payne as follows:

Frederic—Wednesday morning, March 27.

Rural Schools—Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning. The program cannot be given in Grayling because of vacation coming at this time.

KINDERGARTEN PUTS ON EASTER HAT FASHION SHOW

The kindergarten entertained their mothers at an Easter Hat show on Tuesday afternoon.

As the mothers entered the room, Dick Frye, who was dressed as the Easter rabbit, met them and gave each mother a flower which the children had made.

Following was the program: "The Easter Parade"—Betsy Niederer and Tommy Hilton. "Sunbonnet Sally and Overall Jim"—Shirley Souders and Richard Atkinson.

"My Mountain Echo" and "In The Apple Tree"—Marlene Sorenson, Jeanine Sorenson, and Sally Ann Gross. All of the children modeled the hats which they had made themselves. The program closed with everybody singing two songs, "Who Are You," and "Our Music Game", after which each child presented his mother with a pair of wooden wall plaques he had made.

Tea was served by the Home Economics classes.

Congressman Takes A Rap At Teachers

CRITICIZES DETROIT FEDERATION OF TEACHERS FOR LOBBY AGAINST ANTI-ALIEN BILLS IN HOUSE.

Washington, March 5—In a House address today, Rep. Fred Bradley, Michigan Republican, severely criticized the Detroit Federation of Teachers, Local 231, for a lobby it has organized against anti-alien bills now pending in Congress.

He stated that if the teachers are properly informed as to the purpose of the bills, and still oppose them, they "are not worthy of the solemn responsibilities entrusted to them."

A letter attacking the bills has been addressed to all Michigan congressmen. The one Rep. Bradley inserted in the record was signed by Philip H. Nichamin, chairman, legislative committee. The letterhead revealed the organization as a unit of the American Federation of Teachers.

Pays Tribute to Cady After paying tribute to the Detroit school system and to Dept. Frank Cady, Bradley told the House that "I sincerely hope that none of the teachers of Detroit subscribe to, and have had any part in, the drafting of the letter I received." He added that he believed the teachers had been misinformed in opposing the legislation.

The letter from Nichamin read: "As workers and educators, we are alarmed by the flood of anti-alien bills now pending in Congress. We are alarmed by the implications and the potential abuses of such legislation. We are convinced that civil rights, like peace, are indivisible; when the rights of any section of the population are threatened, so are the rights of the rest."

"Education for democracy cannot be realized if teachers' rights are to be endangered. Furthermore, there is precedent and logic which indicates that restrictive legislation, such as the anti-alien bills, are weapons against the rights of the working people, and especially against those in the ranks of organized labor."

He lists five bills designed to curb alien activity.

In his reply to the Detroit educator, Bradley said that he was sympathetic with the aliens, and added, "They must, however, realize that in coming to the United States they must be determined to and desirous of living under our form of government, under our ideals of government, and under our principles of government."

"Each of these several bills," Bradley continued, "is designed to protect the Constitution and the loyal American citizens who live under its cloak. It is the intention of these bills to restrict the activities of only of undesirable aliens. I shall support each and every one of those measures that have that aim in view."

Bradley was roundly applauded when he stated that Congress had heard many stories to the effect that educational institutions were "afflicted with the pink stain, and in some cases this stain verges on the red."—Detroit Free Press.

Congressman Fred Bradley is from the 11th congressional district, and we want to say that we fully agree with his principles as indicated in the above article. Such congressmen as Bradley and Roy Woodruff have the courage of their convictions and don't have to go pussyfooting around for fear they might lose some votes. They don't need the support of any pinks or near-reds. There are plenty of good loyal Americans who realize the value of such men in Congress.

Arrested For Killing Deer Out Of Season

Conservation officers Charles Hicking of Kalkaska and Harry Souders of Grayling arrested Paul Jones last Sunday for having in his possession fresh venison out of season. He was taken to Kalkaska where he pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $60.00 and $6.65 costs.

According to officer Souders he and Hicking, on a canoe trip down the Manistee river, saw a boat on the shore of the river, a few miles below M76 highway on the Manistee river. They decided to look it over and found fresh blood in the bottom of the boat. In a path leading from the river to the Paul Jones cottage drops of fresh blood were found. There was nobody at home in the cabin at the time but the officers looked into a box behind it and found two gunny sacks with fresh venison.

The officers returned to the Jones cabin that night and found Jones at home. The latter invited the officers to come in and was asked what he knew about the gunny sacks of venison. He denied he had any knowledge of them. Hicking asked him if he might look around the house and Jones said he might. Hicking raised the lid on a small dish and in it found a chunk of venison. When asked to explain it, Jones said according to Souders, "Well, I haven't anything more to offer, I'm hooked."

Upon more complete examination the officers said the gunny sacks contained parts of two deer carcasses.

News By Noesy

Many long years ago Darwin wrote a book entitled "The Voyage of the Beagle." Perhaps many of you have read this most interesting tale of a sailing vessel's trip around South America.

Just recently seven persons (all of whom are known at least by sight to many of you because some of them own cabins near Grayling and are often in town) made practically the same trip that so many years ago Darwin made, only these folks took to the air.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Beaudette, whose cabin on the north branch, called Driftwood, you probably have seen; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fitzgerald, editor of the Pontiac Daily Press, and frequent visitors up here; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fryle of the Pryle Construction Co., in Pontiac; and Mrs. Harold Fitzgerald, have just completed the circle by airplane and have arrived safely in Miami, with but two accidents. Mr. and Mrs. Beaudette are in the hospital there suffering from what Mrs. Beaudette refers to as "A South American bug" they picked up. The food was not always so good, and, while not seriously ill, they have been very uncomfortable.

I don't perhaps you would be interested in parts of the night they made as Mrs. Beaudette has written quite vivid reports as she travelled along.

Leaving Miami, Florida, they flew down the west coast of South America and she writes that some of the flying was boring, especially above the clouds, and while nying over barren country. They had quite a thrill when crossing the equator for the first time, as the pilot dipped the wings in a sort of salute, and when they flew from Le Paz, Bolivia, highest airport in the world, 13,800 feet above sea level.

They flew across the Andes Mountains, (12,500 feet) with the highest peak in the Andes right beside them. This would truly be a thrill, I believe, and worth the trip. Another point she mentions is seeing Rio from the air; that city we hear so much about and that perhaps has a fascination for many of us.

Mrs. Beaudette writes that each night was spent on land, and some of the hotels were "very bad" and the "food worse", so there's a lot to be said for the good old U. S. A., isn't there?

She writes of Arica, Peru, where they stayed at Quinita Bates, one of the best known hotels in South America. It was started by a American woman whose husband died after they had spent a good many years in mining camps. It was just a house in the beginning and has been built on, here and there and at different levels. She describes it as being very charming with some lovely old furniture and old paintings, and a lovely garden.

They made a very trying trip to Luzzio, the elevation being over 14,000 feet. This trip was made by train. Mrs. Beaudette writes that having travelled on South American trains she can readily understand why folks prefer the air. The train trip, however, brought forth very interesting things. The town was the last capital of the Incas and was destroyed by Pizarro and his Spaniards. Many of the old Inca works remain and have been used as parts of the buildings built by the Spaniards and are still standing. They saw one of the old fortifications and marvelled at the tremendous stones placed together so skillfully that modern engineering science has not been able to figure it out even yet.

They visited a native Indian village, travelling by auto cañil, a sort of station wagon travelling on a narrow gauge track. Here the Indians practically live out of doors; cook, eat, and the children are terribly curious about strangers. Some are very sweet looking, especially those with a little Spanish blood.

Many of the children had their baby brothers or sisters tied on their backs while at play. They looked fairly intelligent, so Mrs. Beaudette writes, but the women were absolutely devoid of expression. They do all the work and many young ones looked to be sixty years old when only about thirty. With it all, was more dirt and rags than one could possibly imagine, and they must have slept in their clothes because they literally hung in shreds.

Mrs. Beaudette writes, they left two days later and she doesn't care if she never sees another Peruvian Indian.

Later they crossed the highest lake in the world. All was very quiet and peaceful but much too high an elevation for comfort. The least exertion would make one's heart pump!

They had two days in Santiago de Chile; one they spent driving to Viva del Mar, the famous seaside resort, and the other day touring the city, which she claims is a very nice one.

Then came Buenos Aires, a really beautiful city with parks, statues, and splendid buildings, attractive homes and lots of flowers and flowering trees, and very clean. They had one pleasant day in the country with the Ford Company manager and his wife and went to the races, so you can readily see there was at least a varied amount of entertainment in South America, even tho some of it was not so pleasant.

Rio, Mrs. Beaudette reports, was beautiful too, but its beauty was due to nature's bounty rather than to the skill of man. Mountains, ocean and tropical vegetation all combined into a beautiful setting, but the people and the buildings have a slightly decayed look; the people, because of the close intermingling of the white and black races, and the buildings because of the intense moisture and great vegetation.

This contrast between the two cities was a sort of revelation to me; I had them pictured both as gay and lively spots in South America.

The party decided to omit the stop at San Juan and go on to Miami, which they did after four straight days in the air.

Having received a card nearly a week after the party returned, Mrs. Beaudette writes that Robinson Crusoe's Island is still in the south Pacific, and the natives furnish many fine lobsters for use on the main land. We have all read Robinson Crusoe so that I'd pass the word on to you.

TOO MUCH ST. PATRICK'S CELEBRATION

From all over the state come reports of jail crowded with St. Patrick's day celebrators. The old Patron Saint might look with horror at the manner in which his memory is revered.

However the day is observed by many as a time for celebration, and drinking seems to have a large part in many programs. Grayling is no different from other communities and Sunday morning found a number of men in jail. It isn't always that drunkenness is the cause of arrests except that it often leads to acts that bring on arrests. Many decent citizens, because of superfluous "celebrating," have had to be taken care of by police officers. Many become just a little "over the bay" and have to be cared for and in many cases the individual is taken to his home, and sometimes an officer has even to drive his car.

In such cases no harm is done. But when a fellow gets so drunk that he doesn't use good sense and starts to beat out an officer, or attempts to drive his car, or becomes a menace to the public, then is the time that he is liable to wake up the next morning amidst strange surroundings. In his sober hours he is usually filled with remorse and embarrassment to himself and his family. Or perhaps to the firm he works for. Or perhaps he is still in a fighting mood and blames everyone but himself. We have never been able to understand how a person enjoys getting drunk, when moderation in drinking is much better and just as enjoyable.

(By Scouts, Boys and Girls)

The Scouts, boys and girls, are important organizations. They are entitled to the respect and appreciation of the people of the country from the government down to the least and last taxpayer. They serve a public need and a most essential one, the preservation of the youth to our national ideals. Anybody who loves his country and desires to have his best qualities carried on from generation to generation should hold up the hands of the Scouts.

When you see a group of boys or girls in Khaki uniforms, looking a bit conscious and trying not to perform one of their functions at some public celebration, salute them in spirit and if possible in fact. They are taking the first unsure steps on the road to public service. The public will be better served when they and their ideals arrive at a maturity. The Scouts take their pledges seriously and it is not too much to ask that the community accept them just as seriously. These children set out to do a good deed every day. There may be something frankly childish in the idea of making certain of one good deed each day but if so it would do some grown people good to carry that naive notion into their daily living. A good deed in one of their days might surprise the community but they would applaud it.

Scouts are pledged to be useful. No finer ideal than usefulness was ever established in any civilization. Children who are useful to others are being most useful to themselves in building up character qualities that will stand them in good stead in days to come and thereby bring a wealth of citizenship to their community. We can stand all the usefulness we can get.

Scouts are encouraged to preserve their health, and again that is good. Healthy boys and girls are good children. They make mistakes but in the healthy fashion of active childhood, a far different thing from the mistakes made by those of unhealthy minds and bodies. Health is greatly to be desired in its possession by any great group of the community is a priceless asset. The world outside of the door is a place for the expansion of the mind and the creation of the soul. The Scouts make this their background. They live outdoors as much as possible. They try to keep their feet on the ground. Long holidays to a camping place make a holiday program supreme. They put up their tents, or open their huts, light their fires, cook their meals, catch them first offener than not, live and work together in the spirit of brotherly companionship. The girls can hold their own with their brothers in any of these activities and they do them a bit better on the housekeeping side.

These organizations of youth are healthy. They are not aiming toward any revolutionary reforms of life. They are taking it as they find it and they find it pretty good. It offers them healthy, play under the open sky, the rivers and lakes and seas, the mountains and hills and the fields, for play spaces the world of people as their friends and fellow citizens. They have a chance to serve, to feel needed and wanted and liked. They are bound to usefulness, decency and good will. They look good to me and I hope to all who meet them. They promise to carry American ideals into the next generation. That looks good to all of us. Let's help them.

SCHOOL NEWS

GRAYLING SCHOOL

The Fifth Grade won first prize for selling the most Infantile Paralysis stamps. They were greatly pleased when Mrs. Gorman presented them with a very nice book as their reward. The book being "The Bobbsey Twins on an Airplane Trip." Miss Douglas is reading the story to us and we do enjoy it.

The Seniors have been busy the past few days on preliminary work for graduation. After considerable discussion the invitations have been selected and a committee consisting of Elva Lee Granger, Arlene Laage, Natalie Peterson, Gloria MacNeven and F. J. McClain have been selected to work on the problem of selecting the class color, motto, flower, etc.

The Juniors are hard at work rehearsing for their play "Mama's Baby Boy" which they hope to present about the middle of April. The cast is composed of Margaret Flagg, Leonard Decker, Kathleen Kraus, Kathryn Charron, Thelma Papendick, Cathryn Peterson, Joyce Heath, Bob Welsh, Floyd Millikin, Jack Redhead and Laurence Cady.

The Home Ec. Dept has a new bulletin board which adds a nice touch and fills a long felt need in this popular department.

Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Cochran were in Grayling two days last week interviewing the Seniors who took the vocational guidance tests some time ago. As a result of these tests the seniors are able to determine to a certain extent what type of work they are suited for and capable of doing.

FREDERIC SCHOOL
Primary

The primary room invited the other rooms downstairs to a program Friday afternoon. The program was a unit in the courtesy project being carried on throughout the whole school. Next week the three rooms downstairs will combine to give an assembly program before the entire school.

The second grade children are working hard on a reading recital which they have planned.

During the past week the children have been sewing on percale Easter eggs. The children don't know what they are for and have guessed just about everything, but Mrs. Quick is keeping it a surprise for their Easter party.

Third and Fourth Grade
The Third and Fourth grade had their first true and false test last Friday. They were all quite thrilled over it.

The third and fourth grade are starting a library. Each day some different person will take care of it to learn the foundations of such work.

Seventh and Eighth Grade
The seventh and eighth grades are making posters on courtesy.

English Literature
The English Literature class is struggling with their orations at present. They are hoping that they won't forget all they know when they get up to give them in Assembly room Monday.

We had two school movies last Friday "Thunderbolt" and "The Healer." They were both very good.

The student council held their first meeting where the students were punished. They had varied punishments.

Everybody is practicing their oration this week. There will be a gold cup presented to the winner of the school contest. The winner will have his or her name engraved on the cup and the cup will remain on school. Both orations and declamations will receive cups.

The speech class has started on Parliamentary Procedure. The class is carried on as a meeting; the more mistakes the students make in the meeting the more their marks are lowered accordingly.

The school band is getting along great. There are two or three short pieces they can play quite well. The band hopes to be able to march in a couple of weeks.

The school is conducting a basketball tournament between the grades from the eighth up. A trophy will be given to both boys and girls.

Victor will have to learn a new set of license plates as everyone has purchased new ones.

Our senior boys are worried about the eighth graders; they are afraid they will be beaten by them in the school tournament.

Sammy you had better be careful about sleeping in Lit. class.
We are wondering if Gloria is going to like the seat that was presented to her by the student council.

The Weather

This week the weather has hovered in the 20's, the highest temperature since the last report being 34 above Sunday afternoon. Monday morning at six o'clock the mercury registered 22 above and at 6 p. m. 31 above. A heavy snow started falling that morning continuing all day, with a snowfall of about 2 inches. Tuesday morning the temperature was 30 at 6 o'clock and had dropped to 27 above at 6 p. m. This morning (Thursday), according to the Grayling Fish Hatchery thermometer, the mercury registered 7 above, the coldest morning of this week, with a slight snowfall during the night. We have had our six weeks of winter, as was predicted by the groundhog, now we would like a little spring weather. Yesterday, Wednesday, was the first day of spring, the sun shown most of the day, but the temperature only registered 25 above zero, which isn't spring weather.

Peddling is prohibited in the state parks of Michigan, though farmers may freely sell their own farm produce there.

Grange Notes

Nineteen tables of cards were in play at the Grange Hall Saturday evening at the Grange Card party. This was a record crowd and everyone really enjoyed the affair. After the card playing was through the Grange ladies served lunch. The crowd finished the evening by dancing a few numbers to old time square dances. As each guest left, they expressed the hope that the Grange would soon have another such party.

Don't forget the Pancake supper Tuesday, March 26, from 5 to 7 o'clock, at the Grange hall. All the pancakes you can eat for 35c; also syrup, home made sausage, fried cakes and coffee.

A modest way of living may be dictated by the desire to be independent in all emergencies.

MANY a wife has reason to be more fearful than her husband about the future. She may have as much faith in him as he has in himself, yet if he were taken away it is around her that everything would collapse like a house of cards.

In these enlightened days no man need leave his wife and family exposed to this disastrous possibility. By putting a portion of his savings into Life Insurance, he can safeguard their future with a definite income that will be paid month after month for as long as he plans.

No other safeguard for a wife and family can compare with a guaranteed monthly income. It is the one arrangement that leaves no doubt in the mind, no possibility of loss or delay, no reinvestment or management worries.

Tomorrow For Northern Michigan

"What is northern Michigan going to be like in 1965?"

Or to put the question in another way: "Will my son Johnny, and his sister Mary, and all the other youngsters who are growing up in northern Michigan now be able to live here happily and prosperously when they are men and women? What can be done to make sure they will? What can I do about it?"

The importance of the problem is clear.

This article is the first of a series which is aimed at answering these questions as far as it is possible to do so. This series is based upon information obtained from private individuals and public agencies, both state and national, and also on first-hand observations during the past thirty years.

Another source of information is the report of the Northern Lakes States Regional Committee to the National Resources Committee which was recently released to the public.

The Upper Peninsula and the northern half of the Lower Peninsula are what is known as the cut-over area of Michigan. The parts of this region are alike in their history, their geography, and their present problems.

This region includes 46 counties covering some 22 million acres. It is larger than the states of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, and New Jersey put together. It covers all of the Upper Peninsula and 30 counties in Lower Michigan. Altogether it makes up three-fifths of the total area of Michigan. It is an empire of mostly lakes and forests and mines. There are relatively few factories and towns but many farms.

In this region live 635,000 people. Frankly, many of these people are not so well off now. Unemployment is heavy, business is slow, and young people can't find jobs. This was true to a considerable extent even before the world depression. Unless something further is done, it may well continue to be true regardless of any foreseeable recovery in the national economy.

Region Richly Endowed

What makes this rather dark picture even more striking is the fact that this region was originally endowed by nature with vast and valuable resources. To the pioneers of the 1870's and after, the forests and mines and the shipping facilities of the region must have seemed an inexhaustible store of riches.

In solemn truth, if these resources had been properly used with an eye to the future they would have been sufficient to supply a good living to the present population of the region and their children forever.

They were not so used. Instead they were exploited, mis-handled, and wasted—and the people who live here now are paying the price of that waste. Their children will pay an even stiffer price—unless something is done.

Timber Cutting Starts

What can be done? The first step in answering this question is to take inventory. What shape are we in and how did we get that way?

Let's start at the beginning. The time is around 1850. A copt for explorers, hunters, and trappers, the northern part of Michigan has been an unknown wilderness. Then a few hardy prospectors appear on the scene. They begin to work the rich veins of pure copper in the Keweenaw peninsula and the high grade ore from the iron range.

A few years later the timber cruisers come from the East where there are no more forests to conquer and go to work on the virgin stands of hardwood and softwood. Following them come farmers to grow what can be grown on the cleared land. To aid this process of taking the riches of nature and making them useful to men, busy little towns spring up. Merchants and doctors and mill workers come to earn their living.

Era of Plenty

The next scene stretches from 1870 until around 1920. Things are humming wherever we look. From the mines in peak years are coming 225 million pounds of copper—96 per cent of the Nation's supply—and 12 million tons of iron ore. Forty thousand men are at work in the mines.

The cry "Timber" rings through the forests. Lumber—4½ billion feet of it in 1890 alone—keeps 45,000 people employed.

The railroads and ships carry the ore to the smelters. The rivers in the spring are jammed with logs going down to the booming sawmill towns. The product: clear white pine planks, without a blemish, three to four inches thick and four feet wide.

From the old country and the East come men and women of many nationalities to work hard and make a good living.

Ask anyone "How's business?" and the answer is sure to be "Good and going to be better."

Lean Days Begin

Once more the scene shifts. The time is the 1930's. Something has happened. Instead of over 200 million pounds of ore, the copper mines now produce but 50 million pounds. Instead of 8,000 men, they employ less than 1,000. The best of the timber has been cut long since, and forest fires have taken much of the rest. Only 3 per cent of the original stand is left. The saw-mills are gone and grass grows where some of the busiest of them stood.

Many of the farms into which so much toil has gone have failed for years to produce enough to live on. Merchants shake their heads and wonder what has happened to the good old days. In some localities almost everything is gone.

But the people are still there. Over one-fourth of the people who want jobs can't find them. In 1934, almost 30 per cent of the entire population of northern Michigan is receiving public relief of one sort or another. In several counties it's closer to 70 per cent. Public officials ponder gloomily over the problems of the cut-over region which was once so rich and prosperous.

This is a dark picture, but it must be faced. In facing it, two essential facts should be kept in mind. Blaming Does No Good. First, there is no cause for blame. It is easy enough to rail at those who came before us for not anticipating our problems to today when they were so busy capitalizing on our resources. But such name-calling is unfair and does no good. They didn't know and they couldn't have known that the apparently limitless resources would one day give out. They moved with the spirit of the time in which they lived and only did what everyone else did. No more need be said. That water is over the dam.

Second, there is no cause for despair. We're over the worst and we're on our way up again. There are still vast resources in recreation, planned forestry, farming, and new industries to be tapped. Private groups and local, state, and national governments have made a good start in restoring the forests and developing other facilities.

With careful planning and a lot of hard work northern Michigan can be brought back. It can be made to become the permanently stable, soundly prosperous area it might have been all along.

It is up to everyone now living here to do his part in shaping that happier future. The remaining articles in this series will attempt to give some concrete and specific suggestions for doing this big job.

Editor's note: Wendell Lund would be glad to answer any questions on subjects covered in these and later articles. Letters may be sent to him in care of this paper or at 210 South 11th Street, Escanaba, Michigan.

REGARDING DELINQUENT TAXES

The accompanying sale list shows the entire unpaid balance of taxes for 1935 and previous years that are unpaid.

In such cases as have past due installments the law provides that when moratorium payments have not been brought down to date, the entire unpaid amount for those years must appear on the tax sale list.

If the owner wishes to continue the moratorium he may reduce the delinquent installments before the May sale date and have the balance of those years consolidated on the moratorium.

"MRS. CAESAR," A NEW SERIAL NOVEL BY A FAMOUS AUTHOR

Opening chapters—with illustrations in color—of a thrill-packed novel by Wallace Irwin, internationally famous for his "Letters of a Japanese Schoolboy," will be found in The American Weekly, the great weekly magazine with the March 24 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times. Here is a novel about a husband and wife, to whom a searing tragedy brought love and understanding.

It is easy to understand why men fail, but difficult to discover why they succeed.

Non-partisan News Letter Michigan Press Association

By GENE ALLEMAN

Lansing—While the "Vandenberg-for-President" bandwagon is rolling along at accelerated speed, friends of the Michigan senior statesman at Washington are keeping a close watch on his political fences for another six-year term in the United States senate.

Here is an illustration, told for the first time.

Michigan has a sizeable bloc of Finnish votes. Many of these are in Upper Peninsula counties.

When the Russo-Finnish undeclared war was raging furiously, Michigan citizens of Finnish ancestry were outright sympathetic with pleas to rush guns, ammunition, trucks and other fighting material to the beleaguered democracy.

Swept by compassion for the embattled Finns, Rep. John D. Dingell, democrat of Detroit, went so far as to introduce a house resolution authorizing the United States government to sell 10,000 of the new Garand semi-automatic rifles to Finland for only $1 each. With Dingell it was a matter of principle, not politics. He just felt that way about it.

Vandenberg Absent

On February 13 the United States senate resumed consideration of a bill to provide for a $20,000,000 loan to the Republic of Finland by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

While congress enacted a strict neutrality act last summer, just prior to the outbreak of the European conflict, such neutrality limitations become operative only when the nations involved officially issue declarations of war. Furthermore, the President invokes the neutrality act through a proclamation declaring the existence of war.

Because Americans sympathized with Finns, just as they do for the Chinese, unneutral acts have been condoned by Congress if not openly participated in. The proposed loan to Finland was in the latter classification.

Senator Prentiss Brown advocated passage of the bill, pointing out that it was an advance of credit and that the money would be spent in this country to purchase American-made goods.

The debate continued, but Senator Vandenberg was absent from the scene. When the final roll-call was taken, the "yeas" included Brown but not Vandenberg who was officially listed as "not voting."

On the day before (Lincoln's birthday) Senator Vandenberg had spoken at a Republican dinner in his home town Grand Rapids. Taking a plane for Washington, he was grounded by a snowstorm in Pennsylvania at 3 p. m. Not until late at night could the plane take off with its party. And the Finnish loan vote was taken at 5 p. m.

Senator Clark of Missouri, also recorded as not voting, remarked when his name was called that he was paired with Vandenberg. If the senator from Michigan were present and voting, he would vote "yea." If I were permitted to vote, I should vote "nay."

When the Michigan senator arrived belatedly at Washington, he stepped off the plane. And with him was none other than George H. Heidemman, Finnish consul to Michigan!

Brown on Hatch Act

The ideas of March point clearly to the approach of the 1940 election.

Congressmen are anxious to establish a record of their actions so that, when the campaign is on, they may proclaim "I point with pride" or warn "I view with alarm."

Hence some statements are made frankly for public consumption. To a certain degree they are obviously exaggerated for political effect.

When the Hatch act was passed last year curtailing the political activity of Federal employees, President Roosevelt said that it did not go far enough. He favored extension of the Hatch act to state employees whose departments received federal aid grants. Senator Hatch's new bill was then introduced in the 1940 session. It would effectively muzzle state machines, some of which have not been too cooperative with New Deal senators at Washington.

When the bill came up for consideration last week at Washington, Senator Brown proposed an amendment to forbid contribution to campaign funds by any beneficiary of any tariff, excise or otherwise of any contract with the United States or any of its agencies. This applied even to stockholders, officials and employees of corporations.

Brown recalled the $600,000 contributions of the DuPont family to the Republican campaign in 1936. He refreshed the memory of the Pew (Sun Oil) family's donations of $310,000 to the G.O.P. coffers. Conspicuous by its absence was any mention of $500,000 advanced to the Democrats by the John L. Lewis-

The Old BACKWOODS PHILOSOPHER Says:

It's amusin' in how many different ways folks consider th' leisure uv others. Leisure is somethin' that some folks earn, some take it when they should be d'vin' somethin' useful, and others have it forced on 'em. Th' feller that earns his leisure is th' luckiest uv th' three kinds for very seldom is he criticized for enjoyin' it. Th' other two kinds ain't so lucky for they git heck from all points uv th' compass.

Th' second kind is in two classes. In th' first class is th' well-to-do playboy type, th' duded-up spendthrift parasite livin' high wide an' handsome on th' money others have earned. He gits plenty uv heck from me. In th' second class uv this kind is th' ne'er-do-well p-o-v-e-r-t-y-stricken loafer who seems content t' keep his family in want so long as he gits t' sit an' loaf. He gits heck from everybody.

Somewhere at this point is where a lot uv folks, some well-intentioned an' some just plain ornery, git their reasonin' all in a tangle. They insist on placin' th' blame uv th' ne'er-do-well loafer on some nine million folks who've had leisure forced on 'em, th' unemployed.

Yes, leisure in others is a funny thing. Some call it retirement. Other names it laziness, shiftlessness, indolence an' unemployment.

It's interestin' what folks do in their leisure time. Some have a hobby uv some kind or another. Some help their feller men. Some travel or study. Some sit an' think an', as th' feller says, some just sit. Others really work hard hittin' th' high spots uv society an' th' chorus, burnin' their candles at both ends, an' criticizin' out-uv-work who've more leisure than they want.

Even Henry David Thoreau, usin' his leisure as he saw fit in his shack at Walden Pond, was in for a lot uv razzin' from his neighbors for his seemin' shiftlessness. But somehow he seems t' have contrived t' make America an' all th' world th' richer for his havin' lived. All uv which goes t' show that it's purty hard for most uv us t' rightly judge th' activity or seemin' inactivity uv others. Th' other feller's business is always best known t' his-self.

Leisure, uv both th' prosperous an' not-so-prosperous kinds, seems t' sort uv creep up on us whether we like it or not. Th' development uv industrial machinery seems t' be at th' root uv th' whole thing. Yet who, but th' unthinkin', wants t' return t' th' ox-cart days uv a hundred years ago? A return is impossible any way: we're on th' tide an' we must ride it.

On th' whole, leisure ain't th' bugaboo we collectively think. Individually, most uv us want all we can git; some admit this an' some don't. Our only problem is t' distribute it fairly an' use it wisely, rememberin' that it was hard thinkin' durin', what was otherwise leisure time that gave us a Galileo, a Columbus, a Thoreau, an Edison an', who knows, mebbe another Moses.

United Mine Workers wing of the C.I.O. When Senator Robert Reynolds of North Carolina brought it up later somewhat gleefully, Brown explained that the Lewis loan had been fully repaid.

Counter-Attack

Actually Brown's move was not in behalf of the Hatch act. It was an obvious counter-attack.

This became evident when the junior senator cited Michigan's corrupt practices at governing political expenditures, and declared that Michigan had adequate protection today to control the situation in Michigan. He even raised the issue of state's rights.

Strangely enough, however, the Brown proposal has historic support. It was advanced by Pres. Theodore Roosevelt in his annual message to congress on the state of the union on Dec. 3, 1907.

"Teddy" wrote: "Under our form of government voting is not merely a right but a duty, and, moreover, a fundamental and necessary duty if a man is to be a good citizen. It is well to provide that corporations shall not contribute to presidential or national campaigns, and furthermore to provide for the publication of both contributions and expenditures." Roosevelt advocated a congressional appropriation to finance party campaigns.

It was Senator Brown, unyielding pleas from the White House, who voted with Democrats and Republicans to defeat the Supreme court "packing" bill. Independent in his thinking, he refuses to be a rubber stamp.

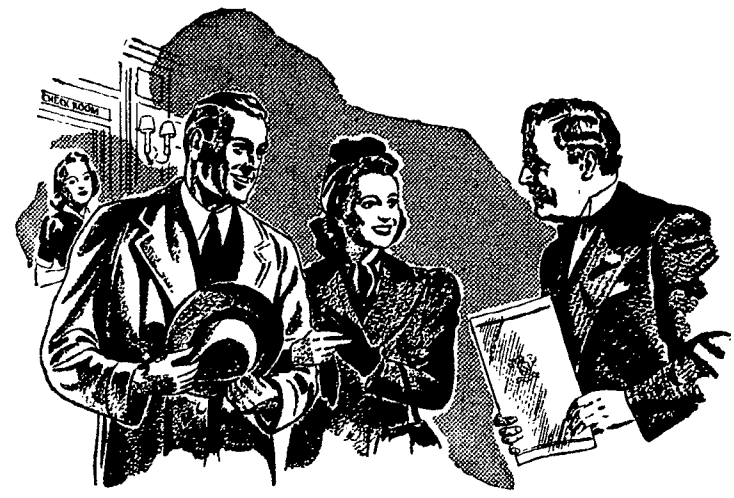

And so the record is being written. It is a forceful reminder that 1940 is a campaign year.

"THANKS FOR A LOVELY EVENING..."

A new kind of beer retailing is bringing wholesome recreation to millions of Americans!

America's new kind of beer retailer wants to sell good beer, of course... but he is also keenly aware of his social responsibility to the community. He makes sure that his place is clean and inviting—and scrupulously free of anti-social influences of any kind.

The Brewing Industry wants all of beer's retailers to be of this type. We do not want any other kind. And we are taking action to eliminate any abuses in beer retailing that may occur.

We have instituted a new plan... now in effect in a few states and being extended as rapidly as possible... to protect your right to drink good beer in decent surroundings. May we tell you about it... in an interesting free booklet? Write: United Brewers Industrial Foundation, 19 East 40th Street, New York, N. Y.

CAMP KALKASKA 684th Co. CCC

Editor: Crawford Avalanche, Grayling, Michigan.

The enrollees and camp personnel are always pleased to have visitors in camp. Whether they are parents, neighbors from home, or strangers from anywhere in the U.S.A., we are always happy to show the work we have done and the way we have made a fine home of our camp out in the woods. To visitors from the communities surrounding the camp we extend an especially hearty welcome for we know that they will appreciate fully the work and progress of the past seven years.

In addition to referring to the fact that our WELCOME mat is nailed permanently out on our front porch, an invitation to attend our "Open House" on Sunday, March 31st is extended to the communities in our vicinity. We extend this invitation in celebration of the seven years of the existence of the CCC; even though you may have been among the two hundred who visited us during last year's celebration, we promise you that you will be pleased to note the progress and the improvements accomplished.

Guides will be available to those who wish to make tours of the area. The men, escorted groups of visitors will be pleased to answer questions about camp life, work, and opportunities.

Remember the date, March 31, the last Sunday for the month for the "Open House" at CCC Camp Kalkaska.

Stop And Think

From time to time, stop and think. Is what you are doing the thing you should be doing? If it is the thing you should be doing, are you doing it right? Are you getting the greatest results? Is there a better way to do it? Or, are you in a rut? Is the thing you are getting, the thing you want? Better stop and think. Get your objectives clear in your mind and then go ahead with your best effort.

This is a good procedure for anyone, in any situation. It has a technical name, evaluation. At this time each year, the Camp Educational advisers of Camp Custer CCC District do this very thing. They have just returned from a State-wide conference on Curriculum and Guidance, held in Lansing, Michigan, under the auspices of the Michigan State Department of Public Instruction. There they met with representatives of Curriculum committees, instructors of evaluation, representatives of colleges, directors of research and many other individuals interested in the observation and direction of trends in public education.

Evaluation was given the chief emphasis in the conference program. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction had appointed a coordinating committee on Evaluation Techniques on the recommendation of the Curriculum Steering committee. This committee brought together the leaders of evaluation in the State and gave them a chance to work together for a day on the major issues of field evaluation. All of which boils down to the counsel above that any of us can use with profit. Altogether a healthy trend in public education in the State of Michigan, and more specifically important to the Camp Educational advisers, the knowledge that they are thinking along with the best minds in the development of the camp educational program.

Certificate Awards

Thirty men of Camp Hartwick Pines were awarded educational certificates this month. Twenty-two of these were for proficiency in truck driving and were issued by the District Commander, upon the recommendation of the Company Commander, the Camp Superintendent and the Educational Adviser. All of these men had previously received certificates from Headquarters Sixth Corps Area for the successful completion of 36 hours of instruction in Motor Vehicle Driver's school, conducted in the camp by A. J. Derusha, covering safe driving, road courtesy and motor vehicle maintenance. Camp Hartwick Pines is proud of the record of its drivers. Mr. J. B. Schwerdt, the Camp Superintendent, states that his drivers have never had an accident in which anyone was seriously hurt, and that he is very particular about his trucks. He wants to know where his trucks are at all times and who is driving them. No one other than his men have authority or permission to ride the camp trucks engaged in project work. That the courtesy rating of his drivers is very high. The Proficiency Certificates awarded this week are in recognition of this excellent driving record. The other eight certificates were for the completion of a unit or period of instruction in typing.
